

The year has found Us with some new and wonderful things on our table. As We share what We receive We hope that You will continue to appreciate and guide.

We are again fully staffed and another Poetry Editor Intern will be working with Us this month. In addition the print issue has made its debut. While I am thankful for the compliments I admit that I trust We will provide something more in the next issue. With increased Editorial input and help the issue is beginning to take shape even in the first month.

Thank each of You and please continue to support The Arts and the Artists.

Edward Wells II,
Senior Editor
The Houston Literary Review